

SPRING 2023

THE OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY
COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

History 7500: Studies in International History

"THE UNITED STATES AND THE WORLD, FROM THE FOUNDING TO THE PRESENT"

With instructor Christopher McKnight Nichols
Tuesdays, 5:30pm-8:15pm
In-person, seminar, Journalism Bldg 291

This dynamic course covers the breadth of U.S. foreign relations history from before the American Revolution to the present. Law, gender, sexuality, human rights, the environment, international organization, economics, war, and peace are all areas of significant exploration in this intensive discussion-based class. We will track two central through-line themes across U.S. history: the role of ideology and the role of religion in shaping U.S. foreign policy and relations to and with the world broadly.

Scan to view
full description

